1. Communication Protocol

Tool: Teams / WeChat

Reasonable timeline:

- General questions: Respond in 48 hours.
- Urgent problems: Respond in 2-3 hours.
- Meeting information: Confirm at least 12 hours before the meeting start, notify all the members through Teams and WeChat
- If a member does not respond to instructions within the required time (and without a proper reason), it counts as a violation. The member must explain the reason at the next group meeting.

2. Reasonable Penalty

- Definition of violation:
 - A member does not finish works assigned before the deadline without a reasonable explanation (+ 12 hours grace period)
 - A member does not respond to the latest instructions without a reasonable explanation (Reference Communication Protocol for details)
- First violation: Receive a private warning from the Group leader.
- Second violation: Officially warn in the team's announcement.
- Third violation: Take on the team's missing progress alone.
- More than three times: Report to TA and Professor

3. Technology

- Google doc: For brainstorming and document drafting.
- Github: For code versioning and team collaborative development.
- VS Code Studio (with Live share extension): For real-time co-programming.

4. Solutions to Team Disputes

- a. Direct communication: The concerned members first discuss the problem privately and try to resolve it amicably, search for solution at the same time through the internet and references.
- b. Team meeting: If no consensus can be reached, a team meeting will be held to discuss a fair and reasonable solution.
- c. Report to TA/Professor: If the problem is still unresolved, seek assistance from TA or Professor.

5. Supplementary Terms

- a. Work distribution: Tasks will be distributed fairly according to the skills and time of each member to ensure a reasonable workload.
- b. Regular meetings: The team meets every (Sunday) at (3 p.m) on Microsoft Teams, with additional meetings scheduled as needed.
- c. Respect and inclusion: Team members need to maintain a positive collaborative attitude and create a respectful and inclusive work environment.

Teamwork makes dream work. Together, we will accomplish this Final Project perfectly.

Good Luck!
